HIMALAYAN SALT

The Story Behind Abdullah Traders

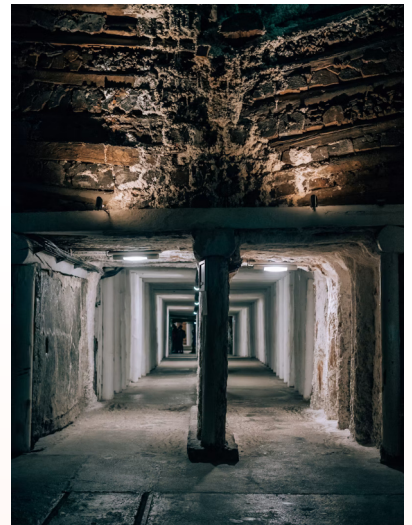

Three generations of salt trading knowledge, built into a modern export house trusted across five continents.

250 Million Years in the Making

Himalayan pink salt began as an ancient seabed, crystallised beneath immense tectonic pressure over 250 million years ago.

Today, it's hand-extracted from the Khewra Salt Mine — one of the oldest and largest salt mines in the world — using techniques passed down through generations of miners. The result is a mineral-rich, unrefined salt containing up to 84 trace elements, including the iron oxide that gives it a soft rose hue.

Abdullah Traders works directly with licensed mining cooperatives to source, wash, sort and grade this salt before it reaches our processing facility — ensuring full traceability from seam to shipment.
